Grants for the Arts Director's Report

BY KARY SCHULMAN, DIRECTOR

Rocco Landesman, immediate past Chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts said that he, “wanted to create an entirely new conversation that was based not on what the arts needed but on what they bring to the table.” From its inception over 50 years ago, Grants for the Arts has encouraged beneficial relationships among the City’s many renowned arts organizations, tourism and local business, making San Francisco a top international visitor destination while enhancing the cultural life of residents. In other words, San Francisco has known for decades “what the arts bring to the table.”

The over 200 organizations supported by Grants for the Arts result in over 6,000 full-time jobs, and over 11,000 part-time and contract positions resulting in nearly $230M in payroll. These groups served over 9.5M audience members: San Franciscans, residents of the greater Bay Area, and visitors from other parts of California, across the country, and the world. A recent survey of travelers showed that nearly 70% of respondents considered arts and culture to be “important or very important” to their interest in San Francisco.

Landesman also initiated a “creative placemaking conversation: to be explicit about the ways the arts change the social, physical, and economic characters of places.” San Francisco has been a critical participant in this conversation, particularly in the identification of Central Market by arts and city leaders as an arts corridor. Joining San Francisco Camerawork, The Center for New Music, Exit Theatre, Cutting Ball and The Costume Shop in Central Market were a number of exciting arts capital initiatives in 2013. ACT broke ground on the Strand Theatre, the Community Arts Stabilization Trust (CAST), with lead funding from the Rainin Foundation helped The Luggage Store secure its longtime home, enabled CounterPULSE to acquire property at 80 Turk, and is helping to keep other properties affordable by securing long-term leases.

The 950 Project, a mixed use development, is planned to devote 75,000 sq. ft. to arts uses. Grants for the Arts, along with city partners at the Mayor’s Office of Economic and Workforce development and the San Francisco Arts Commission have helped to coordinate city resources for the major placemaking initiative in Central Market.

Grants for the Arts’ main focus remains providing on-going general operating support to the broadest possible range of arts organizations. After a number of difficult years, thanks to an increased appropriation of $12,522,570 in the Mayor’s budget, approved by the Board of Supervisors, Grants for the Arts was able to give modest increases to 151 groups whose funding fell below Grants for the Arts’ progressive benchmarks. This increased funding also enabled funding for four new organizations found to be a “best fit” with funding criteria. These are:

Bay Area Rainbow Symphony, an orchestra specializing in the performance of works by LGBTQ composers.

California Institute of Integral Studies for their Public Programs & Performances—a presenting series showcasing traditional and contemporary artists from around the world.

Custom Made Theatre Company, producing an annual season in the Gough Street Playhouse, an intimate performing space on the edge of the Western Addition

San Francisco Friends of Chamber Music, for its public performances including the annual free San Francisco Music Day, Chamber Music at the Legion, and Jazz+ at the deYoung Museum.

Other continuing GFTA projects included the popular monthly Rotunda Series—free monthly performances in the City Hall Rotunda, curated by Dancers Group and World Arts West, the Neighborhood Arts Collaborative (see page 24), and the bi-annual Voluntary Arts Contribution Fund distribution of money contributed

Grants for the Arts Programs

Annual Grants to San Francisco Arts Organizations

The foremost goal of Grants for the Arts (GFTA) is to provide a stable, dependable base of support for the City's arts and cultural organizations that meet its funding criteria. In fulfilling its mission of "promoting the City through support of the arts," GFTA annually funds non-profit arts and cultural organizations that help promote San Francisco as a destination for regional, national and international visitors. Grants for the Arts is committed to supporting the broadest spectrum of the San Francisco arts community.

GFTA's relationship with the City's non-profit groups is quite unique in terms of national municipal support of the arts. This is because funding is not linked to specific projects or productions. Instead, the annual grant program is designed to provide a consistent source of funds for general operating expenses. Grants for the Arts funding levels are determined on a progressive basis with smaller budget organizations receiving a larger percentage of their budgets and larger groups a smaller percentage from the Fund. San Francisco's largest cultural institutions are given important sustaining funds in recognition of their world-renowned artistic contributions and economic importance to the City. The majority of the funds (nearly 70%) goes to the small and midsize organizations of all disciplines and cultures.

On the following pages is the list of non-profit arts and cultural organizations that received Grants for the Arts annual support for the 2013/2014 Fiscal Year.

Nonrecurring Events Fund

Due to budget restrictions, this program is temporarily suspended. This information is provided for reference only.

We hope to re-launch the program in the near future.

This program supports San Francisco nonprofit arts organizations that have extraordinary, one-time only promotional costs for events such as first-time festivals or celebrations, significant anniversaries, new venues, or programs that provide groups with a critical boost. Preference is given to groups not currently receiving GFTA support through the regular funding cycle though current grantees with major anniversaries or collaborations benefiting several groups are eligible to apply. Funds partially subsidize promotional costs related to publicity, consultants, materials, and advertisements. Grants are based on available funds and eligibility is limited to once.

Arts and Tourism

A Partnership with the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau

Grants for the Arts established the first Arts and Tourism Program (A&T) in the United States in 1989 with the goal of promoting San Francisco as a cultural destination to travel industry professionals, including tour wholesalers, travel agents, convention planners and others. In 1991 the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau (SFCVB) became the first agency to incorporate an Arts and Tourism office as a crucial part of its marketing to visitors and business travelers. Since then, the Arts and Tourism program has worked to increase visitor attendance at arts events by designing programs that highlight all the facets of San Francisco's thriving cultural community. Arts and Tourism also works closely with local arts and cultural organizations informing them how to best use the services offered by the SFCVB. One of the services offered has been a series of free education PR seminars created especially for the arts community. Also helping visitors experience and appreciate San Francisco's famous diversity is "Diverse Destinations" (www.destinationsf.com), a series of self-guided tour itineraries that immerse the visitor in the best of San Francisco's culture, ethnic heritage and arts.

San Francisco Arts Monthly

A project of Grants for the Arts, San Francisco Arts Monthly is an outreach publication to San Francisco visitors. It is provided free to hotel guests and concierges and is distributed in theater lobbies, Moscone Center, restaurants and cafes, bookstores and other targeted locations in San Francisco. According to a study by Dance USA, commissioned by the Bay Area foundation community.

"Arts Monthly has been a huge success in building audiences. This publication, started by Grants for the Arts as a tool for concierges, lists arts events for each month. When editors arranged to insert the publication in the New York Times in the first Sunday of each month artists started advertising in it, the perception was that the artists were in the New York Times. The cost of producing it is relatively low. And it raised the visibility and credibility of dance."

SFArts.org

How do artists and audiences take advantage of Web technology and the Internet to promote the arts in San Francisco? This has been the topic of discussion by Grants for the Arts and its constituent groups for a number of years. As part of GFTA's mandate, linking its activities to attract visitors to San Francisco, GFTA led the way in creating a searchable clutter-free database of San Francisco arts offerings on the web with the 2001 launch of SFArts.org. This online calendar is a widespread and indispensable tool for anyone, anywhere who is interested in the arts in San Francisco. Organizations that receive GFTA support are listed on the site. Each group is invited to create a reciprocal link to SFArts.org so that visitors can go directly to an arts group's Web site and get more details about program offerings. Thousands of promotional cards that feature the Web address are distributed through the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau, on-site at various locations in San Francisco as well as online to individuals and groups interested in visiting the City. SFArts.org bookmarks are also placed at the California State Fair, in theater lobbies, bookshops and cafes or stuffed into programs and newsletters. Radio and print ads, BART signs and more have promoted the site, which is now ranked No. 1 on most of the country's top search engines.

Special Initiatives

From time to time Grants for the Arts is able to respond to the community through the use of Special Initiatives. The initiative recognizes one-time only events, or is developed to address specific needs during a particular time. There are no current initiatives underway. Here are some examples of initiatives that have been created by GFTA to assist the arts community.

- Capital Expenditures Initiative was designed to help community-based arts organizations acquire permanent, technical and movable equipment for shared use.
- Collaboration Initiative was developed to foster and encourage organic, effective collaborations and resource sharing among arts organizations.
- Facilities Initiative responded to the rental space crisis of the past few years. It supported efforts to maximize the usefulness and accessibility of the City's existing arts facilities. Further, it worked to strengthen the internal capacity of organizations that manage multi-use spaces and provided assistance in securing an adequate supply of new arts space that is protected from market sources.

Other Programs

Neighborhood Arts Collaborative. This program is a joint project of Grants for the Arts/San Francisco Hotel Tax Fund, the San Francisco Arts Commission, the Mayor's Community Challenge Grant Program, the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services, the Mayor's Office of Economic and Work Force Development, the Neighborhood Empowerment Network and the Arts & Tourism Program of the San Francisco Travel Association.

This program was developed to provide funding for collaborative arts activities that take place in proximity to each other within a specific geographic boundary. This multi-agency effort will support community arts activities within some of San Francisco's diverse neighborhoods to promote the arts, businesses, schools, social service and other nonprofits located in close proximity and to encourage the development of mutually beneficial relationships among community stakeholders. For fiscal year 2013/2014, the target neighborhoods were:

- Central Market
- Tenderloin
- Bayview

In addition, projects in Chinatown, and Central Market were continued from the previous year.

Voluntary Arts Contribution Fund

$157,797

Sometimes described as "the little grants that make a big difference," the Voluntary Arts Contribution Fund was established in 1984. An innovative program that allows San Francisco property taxpayers and others to add a tax-deductible contribution to their biannual tax payments, it makes small grants to arts organizations for capital improvements, facilities maintenance and equipment acquisition.

The next round of VACF grants will be in Fiscal Year 2015/2016. San Francisco arts nonprofits that received 2013/2014 VACF funding are as follows:
